

London shopping mall uses 200kWh foldable shipping container

Overview

According to its founder Roger Wade, who started out with the street fashion shop and label, the idea for a shopping centre made out of shipping containers has its origin in 1999, while he was attending German trade shows with Boxfresh. For each show, he would need to build a mini shop that would then be demolished, and he wondered if he could build a trade show stand in a container that could be reused. H.
